Sydney Conveyancer Signs Membership with Danish Review Website for a Popularity Boost

February 13, 2023

February 13, 2023 -
NSW-based conveyancing company LEAD Conveyancing Sydney joined Trustpilot, a Danish consumer business website that allows its company members to receive online feedback from its previous clients without any alteration, ensuring that the reviews are honest opinions from clients. The company signed membership to the site hoping to help it increase its business universality across Australia. For more information about LEAD Conveyancing Sydney, visit their official website.

The company has already garnered three client reviews since it joined the online review website last month, just days before the year ended. They hoped the reviews would increase faster, as they have recently dealt with plenty of customers since 2023. Aside from Trustpilot, the established firm is also a member of Google My Business, shortly known as GMB, since its inception in the conveyancing industry. They garnered less than a hundred pieces of feedback from GMB, which is decent for the company considering that they have been operating for only over two years.

The Sydney conveyancing firm wanted to join the Denmark-based website last year, but they found it less significant compared to other things they were dealing with at that time. The firm promised itself that it would act on the plan once it executed the matters it wanted to do. One of the matters they worked on first was the addition of helpful features to their website.

Sherry Chen, one of the firm's lawyers solicitor, explained why her company joined another online customer review website. "As most people know, we are a long-time member of Google My Business, the leading customer review website worldwide. But as of late, we desire to gather more feedback from another website. This business move is not only for a sales boost but also for gathering information on how we can improve ourselves. As a company that wants to serve clients in the best way possible, we always need to receive feedback from our clients. Without it, it would be impossible to pinpoint what aspects of our process we need to maintain or improve."

Like Google My Business, Trustpilot is one of the sought-after online review websites of companies that aim to improve their businesses and advertise their services in various suburbs where their enterprise is situated. Due to the unfiltered opinions of previous clients about the quality of their work, most companies will find it beneficial to their businesses and their professional careers. While some companies avoid feedback from their clients, most firms crave it, as they know it is one of the tools to improve their quality of work.

LEAD Conveyancing Sydney is a licensed conveyancing firm that has operated for over two years. They take pride in always doing the right thing for their clients and ensuring that their customers will not be disadvantaged in the transaction. They offer extensive conveyancing services for real estate property buyers and sellers.
